Council Considers "Loyola Day"

At the last meeting of the Student Council on Washington's birthday the following communication from the Dean was read:

To: Corresponding Secretary
Student Council

February 17, 1961

I would like to commend the members of the Council for the recent recommendations they have submitted to me pertaining to the academic life of the College. I consider it a healthy sign when the students manifest a serious interest in such matters.

Please extend my thanks to the members of the Student Council.

Fr. Galvin, S. J.
Dean

Important Matters

At the same meeting the Council also enacted several pieces of legislation which have a decided bearing on the Loyola Student Community.

Transit Cards

The Council learned that two neighboring colleges have made Baltimore Transit Company cards available to their students. These cards are similar to those issued to secondary and elementary school students enabling them to ride BTC vehicles at reduced rates. The Council asked the Administration to investigate the availability of these cards for Loyola students.

Tardy Ruling

The Council also asked the Administration to make a policy ruling on lateness for class in inclement weather. The Council asked the Administration to admit students late during such weather without giving them a cut.

"Loyola Day"

President Ken Gray with the approval of the Council appointed Al Budacz and Tom Annulis as co-chairmen of a committee to es-

Link Lectures On W. Wilson

On Thursday March 9 in Cohn Hall in conjunction with the Sadie Baker Ayd Lecture series, Dr. Arthurs S. Link will lecture on the topic, "The Higher Realism of Woodrow Wilson." The lecture which begins at 8:30 p.m. is opened to the public.

Educational Background

Dr. Link was graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1941 with highest honors. A Phi Beta Kappa, he taught history for one year at North Carolina State College and the next year received his Ph.D. from North Carolina University. The same year he taught history at Princeton.

Teaching Experience

After obtaining the title of assistant Professor, Dr. Link taught at Northwestern. In 1958, he took a leave of absence from Northwestern to become Harmsworth Professor at Oxford University, which awarded him an M.A. Oxonian.

He is presently a Professor of

Sturm Is Ugliest; Wade Bowman Next

Last Wednesday afternoon, Rol Sturm was crowned the Ugliest Man on Campus at a small gathering held in his honor. "To the victor belongs the spoils," and among his sundry prizes, Rol picked up an empty beer mug and a five-dollar gift certificate for Mac's emporium. In addition, President Prodey presented Rol with a special scroll, signed by contest officials and bearing the official UMOG seal.

Bowman Takes Second

Following at a respectable distance on the heels of Rol Sturm who secured 63 votes was Wade "gas can" Bowman with 50 tallies. With 39 votes, junior Steve Bogusky easily grabbed third place. Seniors Rich Hauer and Bo Bavis tied for fourth, each winning 27 votes. Sophomores Hank Becker and Rick "the Brick" Campbell failed to reach their predicted polling strength.

Qualified Success

Senior class president, Dick Prodey felt that the UMOG contest had been successful, even though the original goal of $25.00 was not achieved. To the losers: better luck next year.

Faculty Members Publish Several Books, Articles

By Jay Heise and Henry Becker

In the past two years, Loyola faculty members have written numerous books and periodicals on various topics. Among the many literary achievements of each department, the following is an incomplete list of the published material. Several other works have been published by the faculty.

History Department

Father Campbell, the Associate Professor of the History Department, had three articles published. "The Protest of St. Louis," "The Attitude of the Monarchy Toward the Use of Ecclesiastical Censures in the Reign of St. Louis," and "St. Jerome's Attitude Toward Marriage and Women." These articles appeared in renowned periodicals such as "Traditio," "Speculum," and "American Ecclesiastical Review." In addition to his literary achievements, Father Campbell is actively participating in the Gorman Lecture Series.

Jesuit Faculty

Many of the other members of the faculty of Jesuits have prepared articles and books in their particular fields of interest. Father Lavin, Professor of English, has prepared an article entitled, "Why No Sature?" which appeared in "The Critic," and Father is presently working on another article for publication.

"Winner" The Winner

The Loyola College Dramatic Society placed third in the Jesuit One Act Play Contest last Sunday in Philadelphia. The first prize was won by Scranton University with its presentation of the play, "The Winner." The second place was taken by St. Joseph with their play, "A Phoenix to Frequent." Loyola College took third place with their fine presentation of "Passion, Poison, and Petrification."

Winter Quarterly

The Quarterly has just announced that the winter issue of its publication has gone to press, and it is to be ready for circulation by the middle of March. Joe France is also announcing that the Quarterly is now accepting articles for the Spring issue.

Limited Termpapers?

Over the years, though troubled by various time-consuming assignments, the students of higher institutions have been given extra assignments and long-range reports to enhance their knowledge and stimulate their interests in certain fields. These extra assignments have come to them in many forms, such as book reports, theses, the solutions of certain difficult problems, and finally, the term paper. Though all of these types of extra reports meet with some sort of opposition from the student in general, the last of the aforementioned is usually the one which causes the most comment.

In view of the situation in many courses at Loyola today, several Loyola students were asked for their opinions on the subject of the term paper. In all cases the response was the same. The students almost unanimously offered the opinion that although they thought extra knowledge was essential in certain fields, they did not feel that term papers in minor subjects were necessary. The students, although they did agree that term papers in English were necessary for the knowledge of term paper fundamentals, stipulated that term papers in other subjects should be confined only to their major field.

A suggestion on this subject seems to be appropriate for control of term papers as well as for other extra assignments. This idea is that the various departments on campus meet and decide on the fair amount of time which should be allotted to their respective subjects in relation to the number of credits received. In this way a student could assure himself of the fact that a two-credit course would not require more time outside of class than a three-credit course, and that one three-credit course would not force him to neglect another for lack of time.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Sir,

Last Tuesday, the 21st of this month, the Sophomore Class held a class party off campus. This affair was a successful one judged not only from the social aspect but also from the viewpoint of the administration.

Often we have heard that there is a lack of school spirit, but less than often do we hear of proposed solutions. It is my firm belief that were more of these class social affairs to be held in the type of the Sophomore party, an improved spirit in the school definitely would result. This improvement would have as its nucleus the fostering of school spirit. This in turn could not help but mature into a broadened school enthusiasm.

As a student interested in greater student participation in the life that could be had at Loyola, I urge every student to attend their respective class parties in the future, in particular, the Junior Class Party on March 10, and the Freshmen party in April.

the Watchdog

The FBI has recently sent us a notice saying that it has begun circulating a missing persons report on a certain senior named John Lurz. The investigation bureau has reportedly begun its search at the request of a certain woman who has been seen wandering about at night with a lantern and calling his name, "Johnnie."

Speaking of the FBI, Father Bourbon dropped into the office recently to let us know that the hammering that went on in his humble domicile was an attempt of the administration to fix the air conditioning unit in time for it to break down before the approaching summer months. All reports circulating about the addition of a brass fire pole to the office are fictitious.

Congratulations to Ed Murn who, it is reported, will sign with RKO upon graduation as their new Tarzan. Ed was reportedly considering Charlie O'Donnell as a co-star, but this plan didn't work. Charlie hates bananas.

Rol Sturm has something in common with Dean Martin. They both sing.

Confidential to Charlie Holowinski:

Father Scanlan thinks that your test answers are much funnier than you think his class is.

If you've already read John Feller's article, you're probably wondering what he does on the paper. Confidentially, so are we.

There is much spring cleaning going on at the Dell. The Junior R.O.T.C. officers have announced that they are being asked to clean their rifles; the senior R.O.T.C. officers have been asked to clean their shoes; the Sophomore R.O.T.C. cadets have been asked to clean their brass; and the Freshmen have been asked to clean their ears.

You Asked Who He Was; So Meet Rol Sturm

Over the past few months in one of the paper's most controversial columns, "The Watchdog," there has appeared the name of a much-liked figure. A Loyola man who has created much laughter, not only by his mention in the column, but also by his wisecracks and mannerisms on the campus scene.

Which mug holds more?

the likeable senior has broken down the composure of even the most serious athletes with a chance phrase or action.

Our UMOG

Proof of popularity comes in many ways ranging from friendly smiles received on campus to actual voting in pitched elections. Since Rol Sturm has never fostered political aspirations, he hadn't much opportunity to receive the latter until his recent election to the position of "Ugliest Man on Campus."

Perhaps the best proof of one's popularity is found in the opinions of others. This is why, when asked about the over-zealous dropping of Rol's name in his column, the Watchdog replied, "Why shouldn't I rib him, he's the best sport I know."

Rol, as most of you know, had been the sports editor of the paper until the end of January when the editorships changed hands. During his performance of his job he became greatly interested in the Greyhound teams and became one of the biggest supporters of them.

A Mole Rol

During his years at Loyola Rol has taken part in many of the intramural competitions held on campus. His biggest success came as a gridironer as a member of Loyola's famous "Moleskin" eleven in the position of right end.

While playing for the various campus teams Rol has impressed various opponents with his constant good sportsmanship. Also, while participating in campus activities,

Rol collects a delinquent account.

Let Me At 'Em

By John Q. Feller

Last week, Kenney Gray and I discussed the political scene at Evergreen, and we both agreed that the next couple of months should be quite interesting. The political pots are already boiling.

As far as the Freshmen class goes, I really can't make any predictions at this point of the game. The present incumbents seem as strong and popular as ever. In the sophomore class, the picture is pretty much the same, with one exception. There seems to be a minority faction in the class which hopes to present some formidable opposition to the reigning president. However, as far as I can see, Mr. Slawski, should he decide to run again, will win by a comfortable margin.

In the junior class, anything can happen. Everyone who is thinking about his political future is keeping his mouth shut and his ears open. The big offices up for grab are the two presidencies: President of the Senior class and President of the Student Council, both powerful and desirable vantages. To date, the only unannounced candidate for either office is Mr. John Baynes, junior class president. The general (and assuredly accurate) guess is that Mr. Baynes will shoot for the top.

Whatever happens is anybody's guess. If things are getting warm now, wait until the end of April. Remarked Kenny Gray, "I'm going to enjoy sitting on the sidelines this year. It's going to be great."

Greyhound On The Spot

Several times I have been asked why I never "attack" the newspaper in this column. Well one of the reasons I suppose is to be found in the old proverb: "Don't bite the hand that feeds you." Nonetheless, I am the first to admit that criticism is sometimes in order, and, if the Boss lets this go through, now is one of those times. Last week's paper was one of the worst ever put on the stands. Errors extended from misspelled headlines, stupid captions, and poor writeups to typographical widows.

Probably one of the main reasons for these and past errors has been a lack of coordination on the newspaper staff. Monday afternoons, when the staff is putting the paper together for the printers, is like a three-ring circus. In the sport's department, utter chaos prevails. Headline-writers are running about like chickens with their heads cut off. News Editor Becker darts to the phone, then up to the cafe, sends a Page-boy to Mr. LeFevre's office, trying to dig up anything for Spot News. Editor Hartman disappears over to the yearbook office and tries to write an appropriate editorial. This is only part of the story. And yet, in spite of it all, we manage to produce a paper.

Harbor Lights

Well, well, well! Coming to Baltimore for any sort of theatrical entertainment is like coming to a goat's house for wool. But those of us who are already here are stuck with its few stages (few, at best) which are half empty most of the time, or might just as well be, unless, of course, you like Captain Kangaroo or Kiddie concerts on Saturday afternoons. Let's face it--on second thought, let's not.

Anyway, "A Majority of One" has finally made it to Ford's but it will be gone after tomorrow night. Gertrude Berg and Sir Cedric Hardwicke present their last two performances of the show that lasted two seasons on Broadway.

Now the Lyric has something tonight--the Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers. This is a unique troop coming here from a tour abroad; the begin their chorusing and dancing at 8:30 tonight.

This is the extent of the Harbor City's stage shows this weekend. It is not an overwhelming display by any means. "The Music Man" offers an expectant note for the weeks of March 13th and 20th (two whole weeks, mind you). The Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra are coming to the Lyric, and so is Erroll Garner, on his way to some other place.

Many people seem to like going to the movies, most likely because they have no other choice. For anyone who likes Peter Sellers, the Aurora is presenting a double feature especially for him entitled "The Mouse That Roared," and "I'm All Right, Jack," "The Great Impostor" may please some moviegoers; it's a new one at any rate. Also, keep an eye out for "Pepe" beginning next Wednesday.

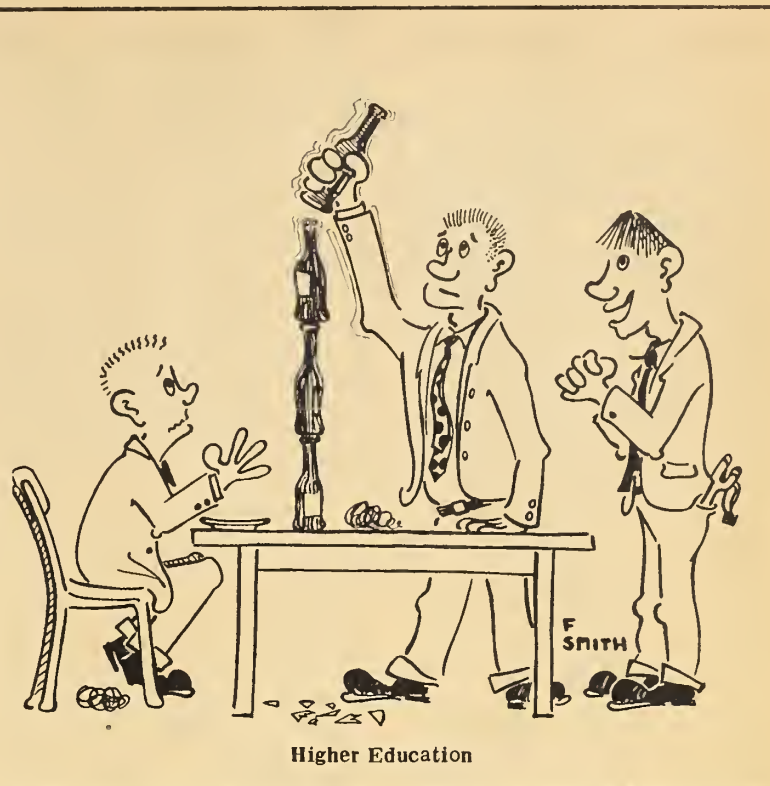

We have a boat show here in the city also. The boat show is at the Fifth Regiment Armory for any enthusiasts, or non-enthusiasts, too.

Well, even if this old city doesn't have first-run theatres, it does have a harbor, and you can always go down and sit in it, or watch it or something.

establish the first annual "Loyola Day." This activity will be an all-day series of athletic events in varied fields of endeavor. The Council recommended that the Committee members be a representative group from the Student body rather than Student Council members.

Miscellaneous Matters

The council also agreed to establish a cultural exchange program with the Peabody Conservatory of Music under which Loyola would send one of its cultural activities to Peabody in exchange for a performance at Evergreen by a group from Peabody. The Council also asked the administration to place a pay telephone in Cohn Hall.

Student Participation

The members of the Council also voted to have the Student Community Participate actively in the Building Fund Drive either financially or by way of publicity.

Brancroft Winner

In addition to being the author of seven books, Dr. Link is the winner of the coveted Brancroft Prize for the best biography in 1956. He has twice been a Rosenwald Fellow, and once a Guggenheim Fellow, and a member of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton.

Dr. Link's Brancroft Prize biography is "Wilson, The New Freedom." His other works include: "Problems in American History," "Woodrow Wilson and the Progressive Era," "American Epoch," "Wilson, the Diplomatist," and his latest publication, "Wilson, The Struggle for Neutrality."

Members of Faculty Publish Books, Articles

Philosophy Department

Father Scott, Assistant Professor of Philosophy, has recently published "Maurice Blondel and Pierre Rousselot, S. J."

Theology Department

The instructor of freshmen Theology, Father Galloway, has written "The Gospels According to Saint Mark; A Study of Parallel Passages." This unique achievement is being used by the freshmen theology students.

Sociology Department

"A Factor Analysis of Juvenile Delinquency" is the title of Fr. Conlin's book. The book will be published next year and can presently be obtained from University Microfilms at Ann Arbor Michigan. Fr. Conlin is the Assistant Professor of Sociology.

Fr. Higgins, Professor of Ethics, has published "The Ethical Good" and "Digma for Laymen."

Education Department

Father Burke, the Assistant Professor of Biology has written extensively on his particular field. Father's research labors have terminated in the publication of a work entitled "Physiological Action of Pshychogenic Drugs." He and Dr. Charles Wilbur have jointly prepared two other papers on their biological research at Loyola. The topics concern the effects of drugs on the nervous systems.

Assistant Professor in English

Mr. Christ has recently completed a book entitled "American Catholicism and the Intellectual Ideal."

Political Science

Dr. Varga, Assistant Professor of Political Science and History, has published three articles and is in the process of preparing two additional articles; "Robert Charles, New York Agent," which appeared in the William and Mary Quarterly, and "Election Practices and Procedure in Colonial New York," which appeared in "New York History."

Economics Department

In the Economics Department Dr. Boyle has published several articles "Area Re-Development Legislation" and "A Comparative Study of the Conciliation of Labor Disputes in the U.S. and Canada."

Science Department

Dr. Patrick, Professorial Lecturer in Chemistry and Physics, has completed research on various topics and has published reports: "Atomic Waste Disposal," "Studies on the Toxic Nature of Zn 65 in Water" and "Determination of Absolute Entropy of Aqueous Ions"

Other Research works have been written by other members of the Science Department. Mr. Di Biagio wrote "General Earth Pressure Problem Theory." Dr. Duffy wrote "Steral Metabolism of Various Insect Species." Dr. Weigman wrote "Close Space Thermionic Converter Patch Effects."

Contributions

Members of various other departments have written articles and books. Dr. Kirwin wrote "The Inevitable Success," which is a biography of Herbert O'Connor. Col. Kadick is about to release a book entitled "U.S. Foreign Policy Planning and the Military Aid Program."

This is a partial listing of the research projects of the Loyola College faculty. It is not a complete and detailed report of all the faculty's publications.

The Dramatic Society is announcing that tryouts for the next play will be held on Monday, March 6 at 8 p.m. Although the play to be presented has not definitely been decided upon, it will probably be a play entitled, "Ghosts."

Soldiers' Banquet

On Thursday, March 9 at 6:30 p.m. the Scabbard and Blade are holding a banquet at the Edgewood Arsenal. For more information see John Healey.

Campus Politics

At the student assembly, the details of the student elections were announced by T. Kenny Gray for the campus politicians. Kenny informs us that the entire process from petition period to election day will extend from March 15 to April 26.

Nine Days of Prayer

One of the religious services that students can make an "extra" for Lent is the Novena of Grace held in honor of St. Francis Xavier. On campus it will be held every day at 3 p.m. beginning March 4. Father Schaffner will give the service. Try to attend the Novena either on campus or in your parish church.

Lefty Reitz: 23 Distinguished Years

Lefty Reitz hands the basketball reigns over to Nap Doherty.

Scoring 188 points in 19 games, Vic Bock led the 1942 team to a M-D Title (Sunpapers photo).

With his announcement last week, Emil G. (Lefty) Reitz marked the end of 23 years of service as Loyola's basketball coach. Lefty will remain as Athletic director and baseball coach.

Lefty Reitz was born in Frederick, Maryland 50 years ago. He went to Calvert Hall College and starred in football, basketball, and baseball. Upon graduating from Calvert Hall, Lefty entered Villanova University in Philadelphia. As a sophomore Lefty made the varsity football, basketball, and baseball teams. But he dropped football in his junior year. He captained the baseball team as a senior.

Upon graduating from Villanova in 1933, Lefty played two years of professional baseball. He played for Albany in the International League in 1933, and for Danville the following year. In the fall of 1933 Lefty was named the assistant football and basketball coach at the University of Baltimore. In 1934, he assumed the head coaching job in both sports. Lefty was still active in pro baseball as he managed the Charlottesville team in the Virginia State League in 1935.

In 1937 Lefty came to Loyola to coach basketball. In the fall of 1938, Lefty was also named Athletic director and baseball coach. When Lefty first came here, Loyola was participating in only 4 inter-collegiate sports. Lefty has built that number up to the present 10. Lefty continued at Loyola until March of 1944 when he joined the Navy. After completing his training at Bainbridge Naval Training Station, Lefty was given a Second Class Petty Officer rating and became a physical instructor in the Navy training program. After twenty months in the service, Lefty received his discharge in December, 1945.

Lefty then returned to Loyola and resumed his former duties. Earlier in 1945 Lefty married the former Margaret Beggs. They now have three children, Emily, 16, Margaret Ann, 13 and Mary 11.

At one time or another Lefty has coached every sport in the Loyola athletic program. He was also one of the founders of the Mason-Dixon Conference. Lefty was president of the Conference for several years in the early forties, and has been treasurer for the past 12 years.

Lefty Says Of Nappy: "He's Ready"

Last Wednesday, most of us were shocked to learn of the retirement of "Lefty" Reitz as basketball coach after twenty three years in the line of duty.

The position vacated by Reitz will be taken over by Ed Doherty, known to most of the men about campus as "Nappy."

Previous Coaching Aide

Nappy returned to Loyola in 1957 to accept the position as assistant coach and director of intramurals. While a player at Evergreen, he totaled 1100 points and ranks fifth in "Hound" scoring history. He averaged 14.2 points per game and scored 352 points in his sophomore year which was his springboard to success.

Other Achievements

He was twice named to the Mason-Dixon All-Conference team, but it was not until 1953 that he reached his greatest potential. Teaming with Joel Littleman and Jerry Chadwick, he led the Greyhounds to the regular Mason-Dixon championship, and then on to the NAIA tournament in Kansas City. The team went all the way, only to lose to Mississippi Southern, the eventual winner, in the semi-finals.

"He's Ready"

According to "Lefty," "Nappy is ready; He was a great player for me and I'm sure he'll make us a wonderful coach." Upon being notified of his new position, Nappy was happy and only hoped that he would be able to do as well as the man he is replacing.

At Loyola

Nappy graduated from Loyola in 1953 with a B.S. in Business Administration. He then went into the service and played some amateur ball before his return in 1957.

Sports Knowledge

He has a player's knowledge of all sports and is especially strong on his favorite, basketball. An interesting oddity was noticed in his old college yearbook. After ambition, it stated "to coach basketball." He now has his chance and is finally able to fulfill that ambition of 1953. We are sure that with him at the helm, Loyola will continue to turn out the fine basketball teams that it has been constantly known to produce. Good luck on a tough job to our new coach.

Wrestlers, Swimmers In Tourneys

GREYHOUND SPORTS

By Dick Cooke

Stepping down after a successful 23 years as head basketball coach, Evergreen's amiable Emil "Lefty" Reitz last week named Ed "Nap" Doherty to succeed him next season. During his tenure as basketball coach, many young men have come under Lefty's influence and many have left Loyola with more than a diploma of academic achievement. Athletics play an important role in the overall education of the student and Mr. Reitz has striven to emphasize this importance. His success in this endeavor is not only manifested in the won and lost column; but, more important than this, it is measured in the quality of the men who have benefited from his ability as a coach and his insistence on good sportsmanship and fair play.

His Theories

Individual initiative is Lefty's means to the end. The fundamentals are, of course, of prime importance but, Lefty likes to see his men act on their own whenever the chance presents itself. If the ability is anywhere in evidence, you can count on Lefty to develop it.

Organization

Aside from his many chores here at Loyola, Lefty has displayed a fiery interest in the development of collegiate athletics within the Mason-Dixon Conference. The ubiquitous Mr. Reitz has been the treasurer of the conference since its foundation in 1940. His colleagues within the conference label Lefty as one of the main factors contributing to the present good standing of the Mason-Dixon.

Era Ends

In retrospect Mr. Reitz can look back at his accomplishments with a great deal of pride. The faculty and students of the college also view his past record as a sign for the future.

Spring Sport Reminder

Everyone knows that with the advent of Spring, young men's fancies turn to sport . . . of the athletic variety, that is. The Athletic Department of Loyola College has provided admirably for the annual shift in the interests of its young men. During the spring semester at Loyola, five inter-collegiate sports, in addition to a large intramural softball league, are carried on for the enjoyment and betterment of the students. The reason why Loyola, a small college, has such an extensive sports program is that everyone, who wishes to participate, will have the opportunity.

Can you identify these grapplers? If so, let us know.

B. U. Edges Hounds

Last Saturday the Hound basketballers came out on the short end of a 72-67 count against Baltimore University. The game was one of three playoff contests which decided who would represent the Northern Division in the Mason-Dixon Conference tournament. The other two winners that night were Western Maryland and Washington College.

The game started as if the Bees were going to run the Hounds right out of the gym. The Rogers Avenue men swished seven straight counters before sophomore Charlie O'Donnel broke the ice with a driving layup. The Bees kept the pressure on however and held varying leads in the first half, finally winding up with a nine-point advantage as the first half-ended.

The Hounds put on a second-half rally which almost paid dividends. With Lefty substituting freely the Green and Grey finally caught the Bees and went up by three points. This was the biggest lead the cagers enjoyed however. The opposition's eminent scorer, Brooks Gracie, started pumping and the Hounds were sunk. Gracie ended up as the game's high scorer with 28 points.

Murn's Last

Ed Murn, the Hound's top rebounder all season, came through with a top effort for the Hounds in his last game. He scored 24 points, tops for Loyola, and rebounded tremendously.

Representing the Northern Division at the tournament will be Mt. St. Mary's, Washington College, B.U. and Western Maryland.

Intramurals

By Sam Levin

Four games were recently played in the intramural basketball league with the following results ensuing. The Mavericks kept on rolling along a literal swamping of the Goliaths by the score of 72 to 24. Dan Kemper of Towson Catholic was again the team's high scorer with 21 points. The way that they have been playing ball, they might be able to do things in the league.

Upsetters Knifed

In other action, the Sharks knifed the previously upset Upsetters by the margin of 54 to 24. The Sharks led throughout the entire game as they coasted to an easy victory.

Elks Victorious

In what proved to be the most exciting game of the afternoon, the Elks managed to eke out a victory by the slender margin of 2 points 40 to 38 over the Pagans. Kosiorek led the defeated Pagans with a 15 point production while Frost tallied 19 for the winning Elks.

Wabbits Victorious

Two days later, the victorious Sharks took on the Wabbits and found themselves on the losing end of a 40 to 38 score. Laur led the Sharks with 15 points while Kyper tallied 19 points for the victorious Wabbits.

Matmen At Hopkins; Natators At Gallaudet

The stage is set this afternoon as the Loyola wrestlers and swimmers journey to Johns Hopkins and Gallaudet respectively to engage in the 1961 Mason-Dixon tournaments. Both "Hound" squads, having turned in excellent performances this season, are considered to be top contenders for tournament honors. There will also be several individual records on the line.

Wrestlers Ready

After dropping their first two matches, the grapplers wound up their season with five consecutive wins. Riding high from this win streak, the matmen are looking forward to today's tournament. The men of Clem are all capable of placing in the tourney with their highest hopes riding on senior Charles Carey. Carey has placed three times in tournament competition but has yet to cop a first. Charles Graham also figures to be a tough competitor today. Graham has yet to lose a match this season and carries Loyola's only unblemished record into the tournament. He has been improving steadily throughout the season.

First For Frosh

Freshmen Schillp, Milligan, and Emmett will be wrestling in their first Mason-Dixon tournament. Schillp during the regular season managed to come up with five consecutive pins to lead the squad in that department. Both Milligan and Emmett have done respectively well for their first year in college competition.

Opponents Tough

Hound coach Dick Clem expects the toughest competition to come from the ever-tough Johns Hopkins and Baltimore U. squads.

Swimmers Set

After going undefeated in conference competition, the Hound swimmers are favored to capture first place in the Mason-Dixon Swimming Tournament which begins tonight at Gallaudet. American U. appears to be the only team with a chance of overtaking the Hounds. There should be a real battle between the two teams.

The Hounds have two defending champions in the tournament. Marty Pilsch will defend his title in the 220 and 440 yd. freestyle events. Ken Freimuth is also set to defend his 200 yd. breaststroke title. Both Marty and Ken won their titles as freshmen last year, and are favorite to hold their titles.

Freshman Al Kubeluis has beaten Pilsch this year in both the 440 and 220. It seems assured that Loyola will take these two events with teammates Pilsch and Kubeluis striving for the honors.

Pete Powley finished high last year in the 50 and 100 yd. freestyles. He will also be in strong contention for both of these races.

Last year the Hounds finished second to American U. in both dual-meet competition and in the tournament. The Hounds have already avenged their dual-meet defeat by sinking A.U. earlier. They will be out to avenge the other by taking first place in the tournament and proving they are the kingpins in the Mason-Dixon Conference.
